CATALOGUE ESSAY

The 257.32ft/78.43m Custom motor yacht 'AMARYLLIS' was built in 2011 by German shipyard Abeking & Rasmussen. A highly luxurious superyacht, both her interior and exterior spaces have been styled by the award-winning Reymond Langton Design. Featuring a midnight blue steel hull and white aluminium superstructure, AMARYLLIS' sweeping curves and structural detail provide her with a truly distinctive profile. Embracing a range of colours, Reymond Langton Design has ensured that the exterior spaces of AMARYLLIS are at once bright and relaxed. Offering an impressive variety of lounging and dining options across her five decks, guests have the chance to enjoy meals whilst facing seaward, or simply lounge on the swim platform which extends off the aft deck. Inspired by the Japanese approach to design, there are traces of ash, elm, and fumed oak to be enjoyed whilst outside. The main exterior area is unquestionably to be found on the aft bridge deck of AMARYLLIS, where a large table overlooked by glittering chandeliers and an adjacent bar allows guests to sample exceptional dishes whilst taking in an ocean breeze. Bringing their characteristic style indoors, Reymond Langton Design have ensured that AMARYLLIS provides a wholly relaxed and luxurious experience. With their trademark meticulousness, the team have created a voluminous main salon, which benefits from custom-made sycamore wall panels, and plenty of overhead and recessed lighting. In the skylounge, the Macassar ebony furniture and warmer tones create an unrivalled ambience for indulging after a day out on the water, while the lavishly styled panoramic dining room is the perfect setting for elegant dinner parties. Ultimately, whether guests are socialising or unwinding in their stateroom, they can expect to be surrounded by a uniquely engaging decor. Comprised of 6 staterooms AMARYLLIS is capable of sleeping up to 12 guests with additional space for a discreetly accommodated crew of 23. Consistent with the Art Nouveau and Art Deco influences found in the social spaces, each of the suites are complete with soft taupe shades and warm tones. The VIP suite includes an automatic shoji screen to provide access to large panoramic views whilst the master suite, accessed through a dramatic curved lobby, comes with a full-beam study and desk carved from two extremely rare English woods - a perfect spot for attending to business whilst out on the water.
